A Merry Christmas and A Happy and Prosperous New Year

We, the officers of your Grand Encampment, extend to you and your loved ones our Christmas Greetings and Best Wishes for a Happy and Joyous New Year."

As we get into the spirit of Christmas - shopping, addressing Christmas cards, wrapping gifts, decorating our homes, baking cookies and other goodies, and trimming the Christmas tree, which keep our ladies (especially mine) busy prior to the holiday season - there just does not seem to be time for anything else. Our families and homes, together with our religious activities and our great Fraternity, are the most important things that we all have in common.

Time has a way of taking care of itself. I have often heard people say, "Where did the last year go?" Just one year ago we began the 26th Annual Voluntary Campaign for the Knights Templar Eye Foundation. This campaign was the third campaign in succession to result in a million-dollar year. Sir Knights, let us all get behind this (the 27th Campaign) and make it four in a row.

When you receive this issue of the magazine and read this editorial, we will be in the 27th Annual Voluntary Campaign. Sir Knights, it is not necessary for us to tell you of our need for funds to continue our great philanthropy. Therefore, how about each of us giving ourselves a Christmas present?

If you already hold a Life Sponsorship in the Knights Templar Eye Foundation, send your campaign chairman a check for $30.00 for another certificate. If you are not a Life Sponsor in the Eye Foundation, become a member by sending your campaign chairman a check for $30.00 today.

Remember: It Is More Blessed To Give Than To Receive!

27th National Voluntary Campaign Chairman

It is a pleasure for me to announce the reappointment of Sir Knight Donald Hinslea Smith, Past Grand Master of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the U.S.A. and Past President of the Knights Templar Eye Foundation, as Chairman of the 27th Annual Voluntary Campaign. Let us all get behind him and make this campaign the best ever.

27th Annual Voluntary Campaign Knights Templar Eye Foundation

by Sir Knight Donald H. Smith
Past Grand Master of the Grand Encampment
National Campaign Chairman, 27th Voluntary Campaign

This month brings us a variety of beginnings and a flood of memories. December brings us winter, Christmas, New Year's Eve and our Eye Foundation Voluntary Campaign. Each of these wonders is an important annual opening of a special period in our lives. Most of us can look back in our memories and find good times and sad times during this special period on the calendar.

Winter brings the cold and the snow, but it also brings memories of fireplaces and family gatherings.

Christmas is the great celebration of the arrival of our Savior and our Salvation. We also remember the gifts that we found under the tree as children so long ago.

New Year's Eve is an end and a beginning; it is what we make of it for ourselves and others. We, as Christian Knights, should begin our fund-raising effort at this time when the spirit of giving is strong: as a result, we further His work of Blessing the poor and the blind with His love.

The Babe in the Manger was a Gift to the world beyond all gifts that have ever been given. We, who are the recipients of that Miraculous Gift, must do all we can to bring His gifts to others.

Hearty congratulations go to all the Commanderies that have labored hard to make these campaigns a success. Your work has been a great stimulus in the care of the more than 51,000 needy persons that your Eye Foundation has served. I am sure that you have found your rewards.

But I must also call attention to the more than 250 Commanderies that did not participate in the 26th Annual Campaign. Your help was and is needed. Whatever the reasons that your Commandery stood back from our assault on darkness, I ask that you join the hundreds of Commanderies that gave from the heart. All of us need to give as we can to His work.

"Ask and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you." (Matthew 7:7)

"Therefore said they unto him, 'How were thine eyes opened?' He answered and said, 'A man called Jesus made clay and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, "Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash"; and I went and washed, and I received sight.'" (John 9:10-11)

Grand Master's Edicts, No. 1-3

Edict No. 1

WHEREAS: There have been conflicts in a given Department of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America, where two Grand Commanderies have held Annual Conclaves at the same time, making it impossible for the Department Commander to attend both Conclaves. It is my Order that from this date forward, only one Annual Conclave of a Grand Commandery will be held at one time in a given Department.

Failing to comply with this Edict, the Grand Commandery guilty of infringing on the rights and dates of the other Grand Commandery will have its Conclave dates reset by the Grand Master.

WHEREAS: This same Edict will hold true in the case of any Department Conference of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America, as there will be no two Department Conferences held on the same date.

In the case of Annual Conclaves of a Grand Commandery, the Department Commander assigned to each department is expected to attend each Grand Commandery Conclave in his assigned Department.

In the case of Department Conferences of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America, the officers of the Grand Encampment are expected to attend all seven Department Conferences each year.

Edict No. 2

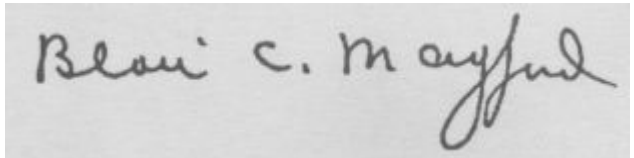

WHEREAS: It has been called to the attention of your Grand Master that some jurisdictions of the Grand Encampment are in violation of "Section No. 257" of the Statutes of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America and "Decision No. 386" in regard to sequence in which jewels may be worn in Digest of Approved Decisions of the Grand Masters by Sir Knight Paul Miller Moore, Grand Master, 1961-64; and Sir Knight Ned E. Dull, Grand Master 1982-85; and an interpolation of the Order of Precedent made by Sir Knight William Henry Thornley, Jr., Grand Master, 1991-94.

WHEREAS: The only Badge of Identification that is permitted to be worn on the wearer's right breast of the Templar uniform is the Committeeman Badge of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America.

Edict No. 3

WHEREAS: Membership in the Grand Encampment has been steadily declining and as a means of instituting a way to deter this continued loss the following is adopted.

WHEREAS: For the 60th Triennium of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America, York Rite Festivals, Scottish Rite Reunions and Shrine Ceremonials will be held jointly across the territorial limits of the United States of America. Full cooperation is expected throughout the jurisdiction of the seven Departments of the Grand Encampment.

Make The Commitment

It has been said that one of our problems is to get more men into Masonry to have better attendance, but the real problem is to get more Masonry into our members. This is a problem facing most Lodges and concordant bodies. Often we have the membership but not the attendance. If we are to improve attendance and thus increase interest and draw new members, we must, in some way, open up the minds and hearts of all our members to a better understanding of the three principle tenets of Masonry: Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth.

In order to accomplish this we must first reaffirm our own commitments to Masonry. We must take an honest and close look at our own feelings. What are our personal feelings toward this organization? We must also reaffirm our desire to be a part of this great Fraternity. We must show our support by attending meetings and making a commitment to assist in developing some type of membership retention program. We must also make a commitment to assist in the development of programs that will attract new members. If we, as Masons, are to be a part of the future, we must all make these commitments to do our share. We must accept the challenge and dare to make the changes that are necessary for this Fraternity to survive in today's world.

It is known that we first form habits; then habits form us. If this is true, let us form the habit of attending meetings and taking part in the various Masonic activities in our community. It is just as easy to form the habit of attending meetings as it is to form the habit of finding something else to do. We must all make these commitments if Masonry is to be a part of the future.

Angels We Have Heard On High

by The Reverend and Sir Knight Thomas E. Weir, Ph.D., KCT
Grand Prelate of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar

It was just an ordinary day on a hillside near Bethlehem. Shepherds went about their routine duties and exchanged the usual greetings. They were unprepared for what happened next: "An angel of the Lord appeared to them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were terrified." (Luke 2:9 - KJV) There was more to come: "Suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, 'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.'" (Luke 2:13 - KJV)

A hymn writer, with that flair for words that separates the sensitive spirit from the mundane, put it this way: "Angels we have heard on high sweetly singing o'er the plains.....Another said it perhaps more profoundly: "It came upon the midnight clear, That glorious song of old, From angels bending near the earth, To touch their harps of gold." What visions these words bring; what memories they stir!

Memories are precious to us all. At my age, two things are especially important: memory, and I have forgotten what the other one is. Whatever our age, memories are important: memories of events, memories of people. With joy overflowing their hearts, Matthew and Luke set down what the early Church remembered about Christmas, and we remember with them.

When Becky and I went to the Holy Land in 1969, our experience was influenced by the wartime experience of George Hogg, a Scottish friend.

He was stationed in what was then the British Protectorate of Palestine and was able to visit those precious places where our religion unfolded. To be truthful, he was disappointed with his visits to Bethlehem. Centuries of devotion, with the best intentions, had changed a simple barn, where cattle and a baby were sheltered against the winter wind, and a manger, from which the cattle fed and in which a baby made his first tentative efforts to take hold of life, into a shrine of gold, silver and gems. The feeding trough, the barn, the inn, and everything commonplace had been swept away, and a massive, ornate church had been erected to commemorate the very down-to-earth experience of being born, of having a baby - an event, in itself, far from unusual.

The story is told about a rich and pampered woman, who went to the hospital to have her first baby. She did not go alone. She took an entourage that included her gynecologist and family doctor. Every time she had a pain, she screamed at the top of her lungs. The whole hospital was getting upset. Finally, the hospital medical director strode in and put his foot down: "Mrs. Manley, there is no need to be hysterical." "Well, if you were having a baby, you would be hysterical, too." "Madam, if I were having a baby, everybody would be hysterical."

George and other visitors to the Holy Land had to fight back through ages of affection and affectation to get to the heart of what the Bible remembered: a baby born in a barn and placed in a manger because there was no room at the inn. In the simplest of settings and in the simplest and most profound way, God entered our lives as Jesus Christ.

The spirit of Christmas did not come to the palaces of kings or the storehouses of wealth. It did not favor the arenas of power or the mansions of the rich. Instead it came to ordinary people in the midst of doing what they ordinarily did: "And there were shepherds living Out in the fields nearby, keeping watch over their flocks at night. An angel of the lord appeared to them, and the glory of the Lord shown around them, and they were terrified."

I should imagine so! If a host of angels appeared to us in a blinding light, they would certainly get our attention!

Yet are we not surrounded by angels at this moment? Even Scrooge, who had forgotten everything decent in his pathetic pursuit of money, suddenly became aware that he could not escape the spirit of Christmas Past. Scrooge found all the memories of wonderful people whose love he had shared laid out like presents round a tree.

Perhaps we should, therefore, look for the spirit of Christmas in the hearts and faces of family, friends and strangers. As we welcome this Christmas, perhaps we should first give thanks for the memories we have of departed family members and friends: "...Angels bending near the earth to touch their harps of gold."

The Blessings of Christmas

by the Reverend and Sir Knight
Donald Craig Kerr, 32°

Christmas is one of the easiest holiday ceremonies to celebrate. Everyone understands it, and most everyone expects something from it. The late Pierre Tielhard do Chardin, a Roman Catholic priest and scientific scholar, would say, "The function and distinctive characteristic of Christianity would be expectation." It certainly is true that among the blessings of this season is the feeling of surprise.

When I think back to some of those earlier Christmases that I remember as a boy, surprise was very important. Where this idea originated I do not know, but there was always something magic at this time, which made things unknown and invisible appear out of the darkness in brightly-colored packages.

Sometime and somehow in the dark of night, when all were asleep, the tree was brought in and decorated and set aglow with lights, though not until Christmas morning was the tree to be seen. I have no idea how "Santa" accomplished this miraculous feat, but it was our firm belief that he was the one who did it - much to our surprise! It was important that things be hidden and presents kept out of sight, until the mystery could be unveiled on Christmas Day.

When reading the story in the Gospels, you catch the feeling that no one was ready for what was to happen. The shepherds were in the field and had to be awakened. The innkeeper was unprepared for Joseph's surprise knock at the door. Herod, the king, was anxiously waiting for the Wise Men to tell him what was happening. There was no advance warning. It was not known what God was planning, until the miracle of surprise came and Jesus the Christ was born.

Expectation is the dominate note of the Christian religion, and it is evident in much of the Masonic ritual that we know. Never should we lose that childlike wonder of waiting for something to happen.

Another significant characteristic of the Christmas pageant is its serenity. It might seem a little contradictory to mention serenity, considering the feverish activity, the excitement, and all the plans that have to be put in place. In spite of all the commotion, however, there comes a time when a kind of quiet calm and gentle stillness settles over us.

A few years ago, when returning home from being away for five weeks in India and after fifteen or sixteen hours of flying, my first impression upon arriving in New York was so heart-warming that I wanted to stand still and just look and listen. To hear the bells and carols of Christmas, to see the lights of the trees and feel the sense of friendship among total strangers brought Christmas very close. Having wandered through hundreds of Hindu temples and Buddhist shrines and walked within the culture of a non-Christian land, for me what we at home take for granted became very personal. There was a peace within that was very real and true.

Christmas brings the example of Christ. That is what is most important. Christ is born, and from that divine event we learn that God is close at hand. With His birth we feel a sense of that miraculous power which can hold us, love us, and guide us. To all who have felt the pain of life, that is a blessing of strength. It is what inspires in the Masonic heart the zeal for compassion and the reason for charity.

Another blessing that is important to Christmas is its solemnity. There is a special grandeur about the day. Something extraordinary and glorious, something perfect and pure has taken place, and we are caught up in that Holy Presence and made to feel we belong to His Kingdom.

The story, as we read it, is a strange paradox. A child is born, the heavens are filled with brilliant light, angels sing, and the only ones who see or know anything about it all are shepherds, who hastily run over rocky terrain to see the baby. Meanwhile, Wise Men are on the way. They offer expensive gifts and bow before the child and worship him as a king. Later on, Herod, King of Israel, becomes worried and wonders if the newborn baby will one day usurp his power and influence. It is a strange medley of scenes. What do they tell us?

They tell us that there is no barrier of separation between this world and God's world. We live and abide in a unity of life. In the form of Christ it is as though God has opened the heavens and surrounded the whole world with a cosmic array of bewildering glory. Such is the solemnity of Christmas. It is a time to hope and feel comforted, to pray and to sing and to see the magnificence of God.

Anyone who knows what Masons are and what they do understands the solemn oath by which all the strands of Masonic loyalty are bound together under one Sovereign power.

Along the coast of Nova Scotia at the quaint and scenic and sometimes stormy inlet of Peggy's Cove, one will find a chapel built upon the barren rocks over which the brutal slashing of the wind and wave crashes with resounding fury. In the chancel of that small frame church an artist has painted a mural, showing Jesus walking on the water, defying all the tempest and anger of nature's wrath. The arm of Jesus is outstretched in a gesture of rescue and salvation. His face is poised towards the battering seas. Tossed by the waves and confused by the mists of the sea, the sailors are seen in a boat with one man in the prow, pointing to the light of hope which casts a shadow on the horizon. It is a picture of solemnity and serenity and surprise, bringing peace out of restlessness. Fear and strain are being cuddled in the strong arms of God's loving care.

Jesus is born and his name is "Emmanuel," which is to say, "God is with us." No more must God remain beyond the outer limits, invisible. God is wherever we are. That is the glorious message of Christmas: Unto us is born a Savior, who is Christ the Lord." That is our reason for hope and joy and gladness!

Christmas Prayers

on the 50th Anniversary of the Battle of the Bulge

by Donald H. Smith, Past Grand Master

The following article ran in the 1984 Knight Templar Christmas folder. Because it is appropriate for the 50th anniversary of the Battle of the Bulge, Knight Templar takes great pleasure in running it again in our 1994 Christmas issue.

As I stepped from my warm Kentucky home into a brisk arctic-like wind last Christmas Day, I was suddenly reminded of a Christmas season more than two generations ago when there was no warm home. Our habitats were like those of the animals - holes in the ground in a dense snow-covered forest. There was no warmth except for the heavy clothing we wore day and night. In that small corner of Belgium on the German border, there was no gathering to celebrate our Savior's birth on that day.

The largest and most costly battle in the history of American arms began in the coldest December northern Europe had experienced in the century. It has been reported that daytime temperatures averaged 150 and that the nighttime average was 00 during that period. There were about 106,000 casualties in the battle; more than the total number in the four years of the Pacific Campaign. Americans call that wintry terror in the Forest of Ardennes, the Battle of the Bulge.

After fifty years it is difficult to describe the emotions I felt as a twenty-one-year-old leader, who watched the Tiger Royal tanks of the Sixth Panzer Army track noisily out of the deep forest fog banks, who heard the terrorizing shriek of the 88 millimeter tank shells being fired point blank, who saw the battalions of white-clad enemy soldiers advancing through the straight rows of evergreen trees in that state forest, and who with his men held his ground at great cost. Those memories have begun to dim, but those feelings recur when I walk in deep snow, when my feet begin to get cold, and when the fog settles on the roads and hollows of home.

It was during that late December winter war that hundreds of young men - American, Canadian, English, and German - discovered how to pray. Those of us who are here to recall that season thank God for His gift and pray that we have done what He spared us to do when He answered our prayers that Christmas 1944.

In 1897 the firm was removed to Atlanta, where it developed into one of the largest manufacturing plants in the South.

Sir Knight Orr never held any political office, but kept up an active interest in civic and educational work. He was Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Agnes Scott College in Atlanta, and a member of the Board of Georgia Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville, Tennessee. He served as President of the Chamber of Commerce in Atlanta. In October 1883, he married Miss Frances Bradley of Oswick, Alabama, and two children were born to them.

He died on September 18, 1938. On that Sunday he had attended church services as was his custom. Later he attended a meeting to arrange for the purchase of a site for a Negro Boy Scout Camp. Soon after leaving there, he passed away suddenly. The funeral was held on September 20 at North Avenue Presbyterian Church, with Dr. Richard O. Flinn officiating. Orr had been an Elder in this church for many years. The funeral was attended by many prominent Sir Knights of the Grand Commandery of Georgia. Interment was in West View Cemetery.

Christmas

Jesus Christ the Son of God was born on Christmas Day
No silks or satins or grandeur things for this child to display
His shelter was a stable a manger was his cradle

God in his infinite wisdom sent his Son to earth The flesh and precious blood of Jesus Christ Saved the world from sin and death uniting heaven and earth

Three wise men came to Bethlehem to find the newborn
King
Gold myrrh and frankincense these gifts the wise men bring

A star shone brightly in the east to guide them on their way
They followed it to the stable in Bethlehem where the Christ child lay

How easy for the Saviour to cast earthly things aside
He was born in Gods own image so he did not try

Jesus lived and died accordingly as the scriptures had foretold
The Lamb of God was sacrificed to save us for his own

Angels sing their praise on high alleluias fill the sky Christians all rejoice and sing heaven and earth proclaim his name
Jesus Christ the Prince of Peace their King

Church bells ringing choirs singing
"Peace on earth good will to Men"
Holly mistletoe and poinsettias candles
glow in silent reverence
Christmas carols fill the air have a blessed Merry Christmas Day.

Grand Lodge Library and Museum Named in Honor of Allen Earl Roberts

by Brother Donald M. Robey, P.G.M.

On Saturday, July 9, 1994, the Grand Lodge of Virginia named its library and museum in honor of Right Worshipful Allen Earl Roberts, a noted Masonic historian and author, who is a Virginia Mason.

The ceremony was held as a part of many different activities, which were included in a Masonic Family Day held on the grounds of the Grand Lodge of Virginia's home and office building.

Most Worshipful Thomas F. May, Grand Master of Masons in Virginia, began the dedication ceremony at 10:00 A.M. as the first activity of the day. Following a very meaningful prayer by R.W. Albert Earl Richardson, Most Worshipful Donald M. Robey, P.G.M. of Virginia, gave a brief account of the life and Masonic activities of Right Worshipful Allen Earl Roberts. He said that Roberts' activities in fraternal circles have spanned more than forty years. He is noted for his writing in the field of Freemasonry, having written over twenty-eight books on Freemasonry, an untold number of articles, and regular columns for the Philalethes Society and numerous Short Talk bulletins for the Masonic Service Association.

Robey spoke about Roberts' work as the owner of a film production company, Anchor Communications, which specializes in audio/visual aids for business and fraternal organizations. He listed a series of leadership training films Roberts has produced which include The Pilot, Growing the Leader, Breaking the Barriers to Communication, Planning Unlocks the Door, and People Make the Difference.

These films have been used for many years by various Grand Lodges to develop leadership training for Lodge officers.

Grand Master May said that Roberts was Raised a Master Mason in Babcock Lodge No. 322 in Highland Springs, Virginia, on April 1, 1948; served as Worshipful Master of Babcock Lodge in 1959; served Virginia Research Lodge No. 1777 as Worshipful Master in 1966; and has been Secretary of that Lodge since 1973. Most Worshipful Stewart W. Miner appointed Roberts as District Deputy Grand Master for District No. 15-B in Virginia in 1974. Roberts served as Deputy Grand Secretary under Most Worshipful Archer B. Gay. He served as a member of the Committee on Masonic Education in Virginia for fourteen years. He is a Past High Priest and Past District Deputy Grand High Priest in the Royal Arch Chapter in Virginia, and is a Past President of the Philalethes Society, is now its Executive Secretary, and writes a regular column "Through Masonic Windows" for their monthly publication.

The Grand Master listed the Masonic medals awarded to Roberts, which include the Josiah H. Drummond Medal from the Grand Lodge of Maine; Silver Medal of the General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, International; John Dove Distinguished Service Medal of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons in Virginia; the Virginia Craftsmen Distinguished Service Medal; Gold Medal of the Glasgow, Scotland, Compass Association; the James Case Medal of Excellence of the Masonic Lodge of Research in Connecticut; and the George Washington Distinguished Service Medal by the Grand Lodge of Virginia.

Following the many accolades heaped upon Right Worshipful Brother Roberts for his many accomplishments for the Grand Lodge of Virginia and Freemasonry in general, the Grand Master had Brother Roberts and his wife Dottie cut a ribbon which unveiled a bronze plaque affixed to the door of the Grand Lodge library proclaiming it officially as the Allen E. Roberts Masonic Library.

Following the unveiling, Roberts responded in his usual manner by speaking off the cuff" about why he had done some of the things he had done in Freemasonry. A copy of his remarks are attached to this article. All in attendance gave Brother Roberts a well deserved round of applause and spent over an hour with him touring the library facilities and museum at the Grand Lodge office building.

In the photo (left to right) are Grand Master Thomas F. May, Allen Earl Roberts, and Mrs. Dottie Roberts as Brother May unveiled the plaque on the door to the library.

As a token of appreciation and for future Masonic researchers, Robert has donated to the library and museum many items of Masonic significance, which he has collected over the years. He has also donated the original manuscripts of his writings to the library. The library has been set up as a registered non-profit corporation to encourage tax-deductible donations for future acquisitions for the library.

Brother Roberts' Remarks

In 1961, shortly after my first major book, House Undivided, was released, Raymond Rideout, Grand Master of Masons in Maine, asked me to speak at the Northeast Conference on Masonic Education and Libraries in Portland in 1962. He wanted me to talk about the place in Freemasonry of the writer of history. I accepted.

Within that talk I said that Freemasonry has many of the best writers around, but they wouldn't be writing for the Craft. It would take them as long to research an article or historical book for Freemasonry as it would for well-paying magazine and book publishers. The Masonic writer would receive little, or nothing, in coin of the realm from Masonry. Our then Masonic editors received nothing, or at the best a pittance. I didn't ask in what camp that left me!

I was the last speaker at the 1962 Conference. When I sat down, a fellow came over and said: Most Worshipful Brother Pollard wants to see you." I went over to the hospital cot on which Ralph Pollard was lying. For those who don't know about Ralph, he was paralyzed from his neck down. The army had treated him for arthritis by immobilizing him. This turned into a permanent condition. His wife, Miss Millwee, did all of his writing in long-hand. But his brain and voice made up for his condition. Ralph and Millwee were perhaps the best loved couple in Maine Freemasonry. His Grand Lodge recognized his work for the Craft by making him an Honorary Past Grand Master - the only one ever in Maine.

When I reached Ralph, he said: Brother Roberts, that was the best speech I've ever heard!" - I had been knighted!! From that moment I knew I was going to spend my life working for Freemasonry'

Let me hasten to thank my good wife, Dottie. Without her continuing help and encouragement, I would have accomplished nothing.

I must also thank many others for their support over the years, but especially two men who defied all logic. One of them, Most Worshipful Donald M. Robey, awarded me Virginia Masonry's highest honor, the George Washington Distinguished Service Medal, and there is this exceptional act today by Most Worshipful Thomas F. May. How does one thank them for their laurels?

Today is one I've looked forward to with decidedly mixed emotions. There are those who have gone before me far more worthy of this honor than am I. For them—let me accept this as a culmination of those who worked for Master's wages. Thank you again, Most Worshipful Brother Tom May and the Grand Lodge of Virginia.

I hope this will be the beginning for the Masonic leadership everywhere to recognize the worth of those who work behind the scenes to make this Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God a viable force for the benefit of all mankind.

Brother Donald M. Robey, P.G.M. (Virginia), is the Executive Secretary-Treasurer of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association, 101 Callahan Drive, Alexandria, VA 22301

At Supreme Assembly held in Springfield, Missouri, (Mrs. Roland J.) Phyllis Maddox was installed Supreme Worthy President of Supreme Assembly, Social Order of the Beauceant.

During that time, she presided as Worthy Advisor of Magnolia Assembly No. 105, and through the years, she rapidly advanced to Grand Choir Director and Grand Hope of the Grand Assembly of Texas.

It was through Rainbow that she met Roland Maddox, a board member of a local Rainbow Assembly. Married in 1950 they have since raised four children. Phyllis earned a degree in music, taught choir in local schools, and was choir director of her church.

Commanderies Need Audio/Visual Tools

by Sir Knight M. William Echo, G.R., P.G.C., KYCH

We have all heard the old expression, "A picture is worth a thousand words." Can you imagine describing accurately the state of Idaho to someone without a map, or without a drawing or sketch of any kind? Each person to whom you spoke would form a different mental picture of the state, none of which would be accurate, and some would be far from it.

Let us project this concept into the asylum of Knights Templar. Many of our Fratres, especially those who were created Knights Templar within the last several years, have never seen a full-form opening. (You might be amazed how many.) Many of those who have seen a full-form opening have not seen it correctly done. Yet, we are expected to be able to perform this routine by simply reading the books, and furthermore, to get it right, it can be accomplished, of course. I submit that in many jurisdictions it rarely, if ever, is done right.

First, many of the maneuvers involved are simply called for and not described in detail. Even those that are described leave much to the interpretation and/or imagination of the individual. For example, the marching lines, the spacing, and relative positions are all subject to gross variation from person to person, and yet they still fall (more or less) within the confines of the written description as perceived by the group trying to do them.

Second, there may be one or two "old timers" who are sure that they remember the right way to do the maneuvers. Sometimes they do remember, sometimes not. Compounding that problem is the fact that the new white tactics book is not identical to the old Rea's Tactics, so that the "old timers" tend to ignore the new book and do things the old or "right" way.

Third, and probably by far the most important element, is patience. None of us likes to practice something that he doesn't really understand, led by someone who isn't really sure if he's right or not. The Eminent Commander may be able to get a reasonably good group of officers out for the first practice, but when uncertainty and confusion begin to set in, succeeding practices turn our fewer and fewer Sir Knights until everything falls apart. Even if the Commander is successful in bringing the practices to a working conclusion, what the group is doing may contain substantial inaccuracies.

It is the fact that people like to be proud of what they are doing. Pride and satisfaction in accomplishment are powerful motivating factors, and that pride rubs off on others, even persons outside the group.

However, many of our Commanderies accomplish essentially nothing. The members are, of course, apathetic and disinterested.

We need to rebuild that structure which was the heart and soul of our Commanderies in times past, when our Fratres would forego almost any conflicting activity to attend their Commandery and participate in its ceremonies and accomplishments.

Meanwhile, back to the "picture that is worth a thousand words." All of the above leads simply to a proposal that the Grand Encampment or some Grand Encampment authorized persons produce a really good video cassette of the opening and closing rituals and of the three Orders and make it available to all of our Commanderies. There are, I feel quite certain, constituent Commanderies, somewhere within the Grand Encampment, that are quite capable (perhaps with some help from a good professional film maker) of producing a really high quality document. I believe that this effort would be worth a great deal of financial and administrative effort on the part of the Grand Encampment.

There should be a cassette of the complete full-form opening ceremony, following the tactics in every detail. It should also include separate sections on proper sword handling, shown from several different angles and perhaps even some in slow motion, all with appropriate audio commentary. There should be a section on proper marching technique. Have you ever seen two Fratres do an about face the same? - If so, not very often, and then probably not correctly. There should also be a section on proper reception of the Grand Commander and the grand officers. Many of our Eminent Commanders have only the foggiest of ideas how to accomplish this task. There should be views of the formations from several angles and even from above in some cases. The words should be included, and properly pronounced. Our Fratres are the last people on earth from whom we should be keeping our secrets. The closing should also be included, although most Commanderies can probably handle the closing without as much help. Nevertheless, it should be included.

"In all of the Orders, the solemnity of the ceremony and the proper emphasis on various details can only be conveyed by pictures, not by words. It is far easier to mimic an observed action than to follow a verbal description of it."

There should be a separate tape for each of the Orders.

Many times, especially lately, the Order of Malta is conferred in short form. This is tantamount to criminal, as far as the candidate is concerned. He has paid to see the complete ceremony, and in full regalia and in full form. This is a beautiful Order, and to confer it in anything less than full-form and with full regalia is not only cheating the candidate, but is not going to make as favorable an impression upon him by far.

In all of the Orders, the solemnity of the ceremony and the proper emphasis on various details can only be conveyed by pictures not by words. It is far easier to mimic an observed action than to follow a verbal description of it.

I hasten to emphasize that it is certainly not my intention that the candidate should simply be seated and the Orders shown to him on TV. That, of course, is totally ridiculous and absurd. The video tapes would be used by the degree teams as a teaching and demonstration tool only. They would be under the immediate and complete control of the Eminent Commander, and he would be responsible for the use and keeping of them. They should be no more difficult to keep track of than a ritual.

A few of my Fratres to whom I have spoken about this tell me that it is unlawful to make such a tape, that we would be revealing our secrets, that it would be a breach of our obligations, etc.

To such a foolish response I would only point out that such an attitude is self-defeating in the extreme. In the first place, John Ankerberg, as we are well aware, has produced on national television the complete ritual and ceremonies of the Symbolic Lodge work, and made the tapes available to anyone with forty-four bucks. Here, for all to see and hear, is every secret that Masons have ever supposed they had.

Are we dead because of that? Has it even made any perceptible difference? Obviously not. I would bet that the bulk of Ankerberg's sales have gone to Masons themselves.

Second, if we are to pull our fat out of the fire, it is going to require something in the nature of heroic measures. Since what we are doing now is obviously not working at all, I submit that whatever it costs to produce and distribute instructional tapes of our work, whatever the effort required, it would be well worthwhile, and the quicker we start, the better.

The Holy Star

As shadows cast by cloud and sun
Flit o'er the summer grass.
So, in Thy sight, Almighty One,
Earth's generations pass.

And while the years, an endless host,
Come pressing swiftly on,
The brightest names that earth can boast
Just glisten and are gone.

Yet doth the Star of Bethlehem shed
A luster pure and sweet,
And still it leads, as once it led,
To the Messiah's feet.

O Father, may that holy star
Grow every year more bright,
And send its glorious beams afar
To fill the world with light.

William Cullen Bryant
