Grand Master's Message for November 2003 - Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving is a national holiday which is peculiar to the United States of America and Canada.

It is a time to give thanks for all that God has given to us, for all that we have received this past year and for this great land in which we live. We are blessed in so many ways that we tend to forget and take these blessings for granted. Let's not take God's blessings for granted, else we might forget from whence they come.

As we gather with our families for the traditional Thanksgiving dinner, let us pray for His presence with us and show our gratitude for our blessings by helping someone less fortunate.

Remember, the 36th Annual Voluntary Campaign is right around the corner

36th Annual Voluntary Campaign-2003 to 2004

It is that time again, the time for the Annual Voluntary Campaign for the Knights Templar Eye Foundation, Inc. This is the 36th, and it is no less important than previous campaigns. In fact, it is more important because of the weak market and poor interest being paid on CDs, bonds, etc.

This is a time when we should get the public involved - a time when we can tell our story to all those non-Templars who can help with their donations, wills, bequests, etc.

I would like to see more "public" fund-raising by all of our Commanderies. Pancake breakfasts, spaghetti dinners, fish fries, barbecues, golf tournaments, and softball tournaments are only a few suggested activities for this purpose. Please discuss this in your Commandery, and make plans to sponsor such a fund-raising activity.

We do so much good through the Eye Foundation in several different areas. The past few years we have provided 4 to 5 million dollars each year in eye surgery for those less fortunate than ourselves. We have given $600,000 for several years in grants for research on diseases of the eye in children. We have participated in the Seniors EyeCare Program (formerly the National Eye Care Project) with EyeCare America (formerly the Foundation of the American Academy of Ophthalmology) and made eye care available to almost everyone over the age of 65.

And, proudly, we have done this with administrative costs of less than 7%!

Starting on page 10 are the biographies of two more grand line officers in the following order: Grand Treasurer William J Jones and Grand Recorder Charles R. Neumann. For information on the upcoming Easter Sunrise Service in Alexandria, Virginia, and surrounding activities in Washington, D.C., see Sir Knight Hines' article starting on page 18. ### Letters to the Knights Templar Eye Foundation...

Words cannot express my thanks to you for helping me. Because of the cataracts, my eyes were so bad that I was afraid to cross bigger streets except at lights. My left eye was always so bad that I couldn't see much at all.

The left eye was done first, and even though I couldn't read except for big letters, I wasn't afraid to cross streets anywhere and walk down curbs or up the first or down the last step.

After the right eye was done, I could even read most books without glasses. All the colors are so bright and the sky looks so blue that it is still hard for me to believe.

I'm a cosmetic assembler, and before I couldn't see the scratches in the powder or compact. Now, I can see if anything is wrong.

I still thank God almost every day for my sight; even cloudy days don't look so bad! I will never be able to thank you enough for the help you have given me. With your help and that of modern technology, a caring doctor, and God behind it all; I can enjoy life more.

It is wonderful that there are organizations like yours to help people who cannot help themselves to have a better life. May God keep watching over you and helping you to raise funds for helping others. Thanks again to all of you!

*Annemarie Leikurns

I was a little bit worried about the surgery, but the staff at East Michigan Eye Center, a friendly and helpful center, got me through it.

Your Eye Foundation has given me my vision back, and now I can do the things I like to do! Once again, I would like to thank Mr. Kelly for coming to my home and helping me with the forms.

Thanks to all of you for caring enough to help with the funds needed. Thanks to the Knights Templar Eye Foundation and to all the Masonic members who made it possible for me to regain my eyesight. Thank you from the bottom of my heart!

Willie Williams
Otisville, Michigan

I want to thank you for the tremendous help you gave me in regard to my cataract surgery. It has been a blessing to us because I could not see anything anymore, and those times were so scary for me.

My surgery turned out to be very successful: My eyesight is almost perfect now. This surgery has made all the difference in my life, and I am very happy with the outcome.

I am very grateful and always will be to this wonderful organization for the tremendous, caring people who made my surgery possible and are responsible for this kind of charity, which helps people through these trying times.

Esmeralda G. Vasquez
Falfurrias, Texas

Thanks to the Eye Foundation and to Abel in San Diego for giving me my eyesight back! When I first went to Dr. Cooper, I was about to go blind, and I was only 52!

I had noticed that I was parking my car about 3 feet from the curb, tripping off curbs, seeing shadows so I could not tell if there were doorways or holes, and could not see long distance so all the people were blurry. Also, I could not read as my new glasses were so unbelievably strong that they hurt my eyes, nor could I watch T.V. Every morning when I woke, I didn't know whether I was going to be able to see or not. I could not drive for fear that I would hit someone, I could not go out at night because the car lights were like gigantic sunbeams, and restaurant lights gave me headaches (with sunglasses on).

Now, my glasses for reading are just the minimum prescription. Everyday I thank God for my vision, I thank the Knights Templar for their help with funding, and I thank Dr. Cooper for his healing energy.

Please accept this letter of thanks for the financial assistance you have provided the following patients in getting eye surgery: Veda Mae Ashing and John James Hammon.

We work through Mr. Lewis Polley, a local Knight Templar, in seeking help for our patients who cannot afford eye surgery on their own. We have worked with Mr. Polley for several years, and he has never failed to contact the applicant immediately and get the process started for them. He is consistently pleasant and considerate to our staff and the patients alike.

We receive abundant thanks from the patients who have undergone surgery with your help, and we want to take this opportunity to pass the thanks on to you for making these surgeries a reality for some very appreciative patients.

We look forward to many years of working with the Knights Templar Eye Foundation, Inc.

Nancy J. Lively, Surgical Counselor Center for Sight, Fort Smith, Arkansas

I am writing to express my kind appreciation to the Knights Templar Eye Foundation for the successful eye surgery I had. On behalf of myself and my family, we joyfully thank God and the officers, trustees, general council, ophthalmologists, scientific advisory committee, and past presidents of the Foundation for making it possible.

This blessing came at a time when the entire family least expected it. We also would like to thank everyone for your devotion and commitment on the Foundation, particularly the Knights Templar Atlanta representative and Eye Consultants of Atlanta; Carl W. Dohn, R. Lowman Oglesby, Dr. Stephen Hamilton, and Ms. Carolyn Dandridge; for their care and support.

I am so overwhelmed with joy that I cannot really express how I feel in the deepest part of my heart for all your kindness toward me. This is a singular benefit that I will always remember for the rest of my life.

I pray that God will bless you a hundredfold. Truly, blessed are the hands that give. God bless you and may you and the Eye Consultants of Atlanta prosper.

Tennessee Commandery Sells Lapel Pin to Benefit KTEF

Manchester Commandery No. 40, Manchester, Tennessee, is pleased to announce that it has created a new lapel pin. The pin is a replica of an early 1900's Knight Templar apron and is beautifully decorated in black with gold trim and in symbolism that is familiar to every Knight Templar.

This pin is a great way for all Sir Knights to proudly display their membership in the organization when not in uniform. They sell for $6.00 each including shipping and handling, and 100% of the profits from the sale of these pins will go directly to the Knights Templar Eye Foundation.

Manchester No. 40 has received great response from other pin sales. For the first time they have achieved donations of $10.00 per member or more during the 2002-2003 Annual Voluntary Campaign. Their goal is to make that $15.00 per member for the 2003-2004 Campaign starting in December.

Other pins are available at a cost of $6.00 each, and they include a Blue Lodge/Commandery pin, a Knight Crusader of the Cross pin, and a Malta pin. Again, all profits go to KTEF.

Make checks/MO payable to: Manchester Commandery No. 40, and send them to: Garry L. Carter, Recorder; 424 Winchester Hwy; Hillsboro; TN 37342

How to Revive and Restore YOUR Commandery!

In the world today almost every organization that depends on membership faces a challenge, and the Masonic organizations recognize this challenge. The following suggestions are offered for Commanderies, but most of them could be modified to fit any branch of the Family of Freemasonry.

1. Find a leader who is dedicated and who will make your Commandery his number 1 Priority (number 2 Priority will not work). He should be a Past Commander with knowledge of Temp1ary, If you can find TWO of these dedicated Sir Knights, the process of rebuilding will be easier, faster, and most of all SUCCESSFUL. Your leaders MUST have a positive attitude.
2. These leaders must find four to six Sir Knights who want to save your Commandery. They may be Past Commanders who are willing to serve again as Eminent Commanders if necessary. Each must be willing to do his share of the Ritualistic Work until those with less experience are ready to assume the leadership positions in the Commandery.
3. Masonic organizations exist because of ritual; therefore, ritual must be impressive; otherwise, the new member will not return to become active nor will he bring in any petitions. Without ritual we would be a poor match with other social organizations or social clubs.
4. Ritual must be conferred on a regular schedule. Set a conferral date six months in advance and begin to build the class. Start rehearsals promptly. If you do not have enough members for all parts, ask members of another Commandery to help you, but don't expect them to carry the bulk of the load.
5. Plan to confer the three Orders on a Saturday. You can confer the Red Cross and Malta in the morning and start the Order of the Temple in the afternoon and complete it before dinner. If you have more than five candidates, do the chamber of reflection en masse. Determine the starting time; if you use music, it will take longer, but it will be more impressive.
6. If you start in the morning, serve a lunch - FREE TO ALL. A couple of the ladies can handle this without much effort, or maybe a couple Sir Knights would be willing to do this service for the Commandery.
7. If the work will not conclude until 5:00 P.M., it would be well to serve a dinner, preferably free to everyone, or put a plate out for voluntary donations. Never charge the new member for his dinner.
8. Have coffee and donuts for the candidates and members if you are starting early in the morning. Coffee or tea can occupy the candidates while the room is being set up for the next Order, and it will give them an opportunity to become acquainted.
9. Do not have delays during the conferral. BE ORGANIZED!! Assign specific jobs to the officers and members.

10. If at all possible, incorporate some music in the degrees; it helps to keep the degree moving.
11. You must coordinate your conferral with a Chapter. The Commander and the High Priest should plan and schedule the conferrals as a unit working together. One cannot survive without the other.
12. Make a poster to advertise the YORK RITE CONFERRAL. Include information such as: date of conferral, when petitions must be read, time and location, and the name of the Chapter and Commandery. Place this information in Masonic buildings in your area where there are prospective members.
13. Select a Membership Committee consisting of active Blue Lodge Masons who frequently bring in petitions.
14. Name the Class in honor of a "Distinguished Member."
15. Ask the Worshipful Masters of local Lodges to allow you to announce the Class at their meetings.
16. About one month after the conferral, have a dinner party with entertainment in a suitable location. Invite the ladies and Master Masons. This could be an important annual function.
17. Have a summer picnic or outing. Invite members to bring Master Masons and their families. Charge a fee to cover the costs, and consider bringing non-Masons as guests if they are good prospects.
18. The Commandery MUST have a program at every Conclave. Remember: There must be more than the minutes and communications to encourage attendance. The tentative program for the year should be in the May notice. Be realistic; we are living in the 21st century.
19. Total cooperation of the Recorder is necessary because without his cooperation and enthusiasm there will not be much progress.
20. Equipment and robes should be in the best possible condition. Most items can be repaired or painted by the members. (This also gives members who do not want to be officers a chance to contribute something to the organization.) If you are short on equipment, ask another Commandery for assistance.
21. A friendly, positive attitude is necessary for your key people as well as your officers.
22. If your Commandery has not conferred the Orders on a regular basis, your attendance is probably poor and petitions are scarce. A Commandery must do the above, or you will continue to slowly lose your Commandery.
23. DECIDE TO MEET THE CHALLENGE AND MAKE YOUR COMMANDERY A CREDIT TO TEMPLARY AND FREEMASONRY IN GENERAL.

The afghan measures 48-in, by 60-in, and is lightweight but weaved very tight for definition.

The price is $48.00 each, including shipping in the US. A donation of $5.00 for each one sold will go to the Knights Templar Eye Foundation. ## Stephen Benton Elkins:

The Patron of Halliehurst - Part II

by Sir Knight Joseph E. Bennett
KYCH, 33°, FPS

A new era began for 32-year-old Steve Elkins in 1873, when he was elected as the territorial representative to Congress. While he was making preparations to travel to Washington, D.C., to take up his responsibilities in Congress, his wife Sarah passed away suddenly. Steve was obliged to obtain a trustworthy housekeeper to maintain his home in Santa Fe while he was in Washington and to act as a surrogate parent for Elizabeth and Sallie, his two young daughters. That concluded, he boarded the train to the nation's capital.

Elkins plunged into his new duties with a characteristic flurry of enthusiasm. During his first term in the House of Representatives, he introduced 52 bills. He immediately gained the respect of his constituents for his outstanding speaking ability on the floor of the House and his equally brilliant talent as a negotiator. Steve Elkins was a born statesman.

The freshman congressman did not neglect his social activity in Washington. Before long he became a friend and political ally with powerful Senator Henry Gassaway Davis of West Virginia. Another new and influential friend in the U.S. Senate was Senator James G. Blaine of Maine. With a growing circle of political allies singing his praises, it was no surprise when Elkins was named to the Executive Committee of the Republican party in 1875. With his business holdings expanding dramatically in the New Mexico Territory Steve announced that he would not be a candidate for a second term in Congress. In spite of his announcement, he was reelected to the House of Representatives by a resounding margin. He accepted with reluctance.

Elkins began to sell off a substantial amount of Western property in 1875. His interests in Washington permitted only infrequent visits to New Mexico. He also began courting Haffie Davis, the daughter of West Virginia senator, Henry G. Davis. The young couple were married at Baltimore, Maryland, on April 14, 1875. They departed immediately for a honeymoon in Europe.

As his second term began in the House of Representatives, Elkins was wearing several hats, all of them demanding his constant attention. As a Congressman, he was obliged to be involved in the day-to-day legislative activities. As a businessman, he was required to monitor his widespread business activities entrusted to on-site supervision by trusted employees. Steve was an astute judge of men and was able to select trustworthy and talented management to protect his interests in real estate, mining, and banking. He was also most effective as a political power, preferring to work behind the scenes as much as possible. His powers of persuasion and logic enabled Elkins to maintain peace and harmony among the powerful factions of the Republican party and to agree upon a unanimous choice of national candidates. Those were usually elected during Steve's active years on the Executive Committee of the party.

By the end of 1875, Steve had combined his financial interests with those of Senator Henry Gassaway Davis, his new father-in-law. Davis was one of the wealthiest men in the East and a dominant influence in business and politics in West Virginia. When Elkins' vast financial strength was combined with that of Senator

Davis, the duo controlled immense venture capital. Elkins systematically liquidated most of his holdings in New Mexico and Colorado, with the exception of several mining properties. The new partners launched a huge natural resource development program in West Virginia, a state with immense coal and timber reserves, barely tapped in 1876.

Elkins opened a law office in New York City to streamline the disposal of his Western assets and to accommodate a growing list of affluent clients. He had maintained a law office in Washington since his election to Congress and served a legal practice in that city as well. He had thousands of acres of real estate tracts to market, as well as public stock in his mining ventures. His capacity for work was amazing, particularly so in light of the invaluable hands-on support he contributed to the election of Rutherford B. Hayes as president in 1876. The political influence he derived from his personal campaigning efforts was enormous.

In 1876 Stephen B. Elkins was in his physical prime at 35 years of age. He stood over six feet and weighed 190 pounds - a picture of rugged health and vitality. Wide-shouldered and handsome, Steve's urbanity and genial, smiling personality projected a positive, trustworthy public image. Religious and scrupulously honest, Elkins was an example of the quintessential business tycoon and congress-man - a national treasure.

Steve refused a third term in Congress. He was too occupied with his expanding West Virginia ventures to devote the time required for daily congressional sessions. He and Senator Davis were moving forward rapidly with a plan to develop the timber and mining industries in West Virginia. They built a railroad to connect and service every point of their growing state industrial empire. Their West Virginia Central & Pittsburgh Railroad trackage crisscrossed south and west from Piedmont to the 1rgart River Valley. At the northern end of the valley, Steve and Hallie Elkins built their dream home.

In a beautiful setting on the western slope of the Allegheny Mountains, Steve erected a 31-room mansion which resembled a medieval castle. It was designed by Charles T. Mott, an internationally-acclaimed architect. The extensive grounds were immaculately manicured, landscaped with trees, gardens, orchards, and a herd of 20 deer. Steve christened the castle "Halliehurst" in honor of his beloved wife. A small home on the grounds was built to serve as Elkins' business headquarters. Steve hosted the rich and famous of the entire world at their exotic Randolph County castle, and the town of Elkins, West Virginia, grew up around it. The estate remains today, as part of the tract of land which houses Davis and Elkins College - a gift from their patron, "Slick Steve."

Elkins' charitable donations became legendary. He never failed to consider a petition for financial assistance nor to grant it if legitimate. Steve's traditional prudence prompted him to investigate every request for authenticity. The benefits bestowed upon the citizens of Elkins were endless. The castle and environs were completed in 1886 and included a mansion for Senator Davis, some 600 feet from the Halliehurst residence.

National politics remained a continuing interest for Steve Elkins. His old friend, Senator James Blaine, was constantly in the limelight as a qualified presidential contender, and Elkins worked hard to help his friend achieve his ambition. In the 1880 Republican Convention, Blaine was in a close contest for the nomination. Eventually, the Republican candidacy went to James A. Garfield. Although disappointed that Blaine had not prevailed, Elkins threw his entire weight behind Garfield when he was asked for support. Both Steve Elkins and Senator Blaine stumped Ohio and Indiana in a major effort to secure Garfield's election. A grateful President Garfield selected James Blaine as his Secretary of State. Elkins was happy to be among the president's most trusted advisors behind the scene.

Again in 1884 Steve repeated his effort to persuade the Republican party to nominate Senator Blaine as their presidential candidate. Elkins was successful in that attempt. However, a serious split developed in the ranks, and Democrat Grover Cleveland won the presidency. Steve blamed himself for Blaine's disappointing loss at the polls.

In 1888 Elkins proved to be the king-maker, when he persuaded the party to back Benjamin Harrison for president. When President Harrison's Secretary of War, Redfield Proctor, resigned to run for the U.S. Senate, Steve Elkins was appointed to replace him. Elkins implemented a number of impressive improvements in the army during his tenure as secretary; including a uniform code of discipline, better record-keeping, and organized weapon maintenance and accountability. As Secretary of War, he negotiated improved veteran benefits, a great personal benefit for the individual soldier.

Steve discharged a long-standing obligation in 1891 when he secured a pardon for Cole Younger, who had been imprisoned for life for his involvement with the James gang during the aborted

Northfield Bank robbery in 1876. Elkins had never forgotten the man who saved his life at Quantrill's guerrilla camp during the Civil War. Cole Younger vindicated Steve's loyalty by demonstrating his rehabilitation. He was an exemplary citizen for the balance of his life. He lived until 1916.

A grass roots movement in West Virginia supported Steve as a candidate for governor in 1892. He declined, knowing the four-year commitment would create a serious conflict with his business obligations. Later, when offered an appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court, he refused for the same reason.

Steve Elkins was the most powerful Republican in West Virginia in 1895 and a patriarch of the national party. He had been a major player in the Republican party's rise to control in West Virginia for the first time in state history. When the election of a senator fell to the West Virginia Legislature in 1895, Steve was their choice virtually by acclamation. At that point in his career, Elkins was ready for the challenge.

Although the name of "Elkins" was prominently mentioned as a Republican candidate for both vice president and president in the 1890s, it was not to be. Fate decreed that Elkins had a more important role to play in the U.S. Senate. He was the sponsor of a number of pieces of landmark legislation. His legislative programs were not always popular with the public at first; however, they provided a dose of financial castor oil necessary to impose strict fiscal control over the office of the president, as well as safeguards against the evils of price-fixing and market domination by huge corporations. Those curbs were accomplished within the framework of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Sherman Anti-Trust

Act. In 1898 Elkins supported the declaration of war, following the sinking of the battleship Maine at Havana, Cuba. After the Spanish-American War was over, Elkins' resolution to admit Cuba as a state was defeated.

Reelected to the senate in 1901, Elkins was still able to supervise his West Virginia business enterprises. He and Senator Davis jointly owned 90,000 acres of coal-producing acreage in the state, in addition to a great timbering operation, all serviced by their railroad. In the midst of his own business activities, Elkins was able to take a major role in the acquisition of a long-term agreement with Panama, providing the United States permanent access to the waterway linkup between the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific Ocean. Steve continued to seek legislation to curtail oppressive railroad monopolies, even though he was a railroad owner himself.

Steve was so successful in his crusade for fair trade practices that he made a supporter out of President Theodore Roosevelt. Teddy had taken office following the assassination of President McKinley in 1901, and he was not one of Elkins' fans at that time. Roosevelt considered Steve a friend of big business. Senator Elkins demonstrated to everyone that he placed the welfare of the country above personal consideration.

As the presidential campaign began in 1908, Stephen Elkins was a popular choice for the Republican nomination. Nevertheless, he withdrew his name from consideration when President Theodore Roosevelt endorsed William Howard Taft. For unanimity and the greater good, Steve gave his complete and active support to Taft's successful campaign. When Congress reconvened, Steve was back in the senatorial trenches. In the twilight years of his life, Steve continued to work ceaselessly for statehood for the New Mexico Territory, but that happy event would not become reality until 1912. In 1910 Steve was gratified to see his dream of developing a canal from West Virginia to the Ohio River become a reality. The passage of his rivers and harbor bill made it possible. It was a fitting triumph for his final active days in the U.S. Congress.

The congressional session ended on July 10, 1910, and Steve returned to West Virginia for a long rest. He had suffered deteriorating health for several weeks. During his summer at Halliehurst, he continued to decline. A number of personal appearances were canceled, including the dedication of a new Odd Fellows Home for the indigent in the town of Elkins. It was a charitable event Steve had particularly desired to attend.

Press releases commented daily on the state of Steve's health, reporting his problem to be an acute digestive disorder. His lifelong friend and business partner from Santa Fe was more direct in a personal letter to the senator. Blunt and tactless, as always, Tom Catron wrote, "I hear you are suffering from cancer of the stomach, and are starving to death." He was right. In spite of the grave condition of his health, Elkins insisted upon being present when Congress convened in December 1910.

Steve and Hallie traveled to Washington from Halliehurst in their private railway car on November 8. When they arrived at the capital, Elkins was too weak to walk and was conveyed by ambulance to their home on K Street. He continued to sink rapidly, expiring at his residence just after midnight on January 5, 1911. Following extensive memorial obsequies at the capital, the senator's remains were transported home to West Virginia for burial. The Reverend Dr. C. H. Barton delivered the funeral oration at Davis Memorial Presbyterian Church at Elkins on January 11, 1911. The book of life for Stephen Benton Elkins was closed in his 69th year. The event was attended by a large throng of his friends and admirers.

A retrospective of the life of Steve Elkins must focus on a career of monumental personal accomplishment, enhanced by a legacy of service to his fellow citizens. One cannot escape the realization that Elkins' celebrated potential would not have achieved full bloom had it not been for the serendipitous act of a Confederate guerrilla fighter in 1863. Truly, Cole Younger thwarted the ethereal Pale Horse that day and saved Steve Elkins for posterity.

Elkins' great wealth was shared with most of those who came to him for relief and succor, and a major portion was donated to enhance the lives of the average citizen. Elkins displayed a perfect perception of his Christian obligation; to devote a just portion of his life to God, family, and country. His fidelity to the Masonic Fraternity was demonstrated during a lifetime of faithful membership and exemplary deportment. No American Mason was more deserving of the judgmental accolade to which we all aspire: "Well done, good and faithful servant."
